Vargas Aiming for . . . . . . Tony's China Chin

Philosophical Fighter Packs Hefty Punch

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Reuben Vargas, a handsome young Mexican out of Richmond, Calif., who dotes on Plato, has a philosophical outlook as he prepares to battle Tony Anthony at Madison Square Garden on Friday night.

"If I hit him with this," Vargas said quietly as he held up a fist as big as a first baseman's glove, "Mr. Anthony will have to go."

The odds are 3 to 1 against Reuben accomplishing this feat of marksmanship on Tony's mysterious mandible, a curious bit of crockery which is highly allergic to contact with leather mittens.

Anthony has lost six bouts and five of those times he was knocked out. Vargas, a television mystery man what with this being his first video bout, has scored 13 knockouts in compiling 17 victories. So there is merit in his statement.

If almost anybody strikes Mr. Anthony on his china chin, young Tony usually "has to go." So there is no reason why Vargas cannot accomplish this feat "If I hit him like this."

Vargas, however, may be too busy receiving and avoiding to engage in offensively effective tactics. For, while he professes to have "no time for the ladies," out of the ring he looks like one of those Latin lover types out of an old grade "B" movie.

His hair is thick, jet black and curly. His brown eyes are soft. And white teeth smile evenly from under a pencil mustache. On top of which, he talks like a college man.

"I only graduated from high school," he says softly. "It is true that I read a great deal of philosophy and, while I am a carpenter by trade, I am studying to be an architect. As a matter of fact, after this fight I am going to begin my career by building a house for my mother."

His mother obviously can use it. Reuben is one of 11 children and his mother is widowed.

"I told her to start planning the flower beds," Reuben smiled dreamily. "Plenty of flower beds. I like flowers."

He is, this 26-year-old 190-pound Mexican, off his record a pretty good fist fighter, too. Starting as a 12-year-old boys club boxer, Reuben won the National AAU heavyweight title at Boston in 1954 and subsequently turned pro. He is built along the statuesque lines of a Max Baer and, according to advance information, punches in the manner of a Rocky Marciano.

His record shows 17 wins in 23 bouts and, as evidence of his ability, he went 10 rounds against heavyweight Alex Miteff. This is not a guilt-edged guarantee of Reuben's prowess, Miteff not being rated exactly a top drawer tiger, but it does show that Vargas knows his way through the ropes.

Anthony, the top-ranking light heavyweight challenger, at 23 will be giving away 10 pounds. But this classy boxer is a stiff puncher with 28 knockouts in 37 wins who also has heavyweight aspirations. All of which makes it shape up as a better than average brawl.

Guns 'Misused'

Hunting Licence Law Under Fire

J. Donald Smith, Social Credit member for Victoria, yesterday asked the provincial legislature for legislation to demand that hunters be issued a learner's hunting licence in the same manner as learner's driving licences are issued.

He asked that it be made mandatory for those who are taking out a licence for the first time to hunt at all times during the first year in the presence of an experienced adult who carries a full licence.

"We need a better hunting safety program," he said. He suggested that when a hunter is involved in a shooting accident his right to carry a firearm be suspended for life, or a very long time.

Recreation Minister Earle Westwood explained that anyone involved in a hunting accident automatically has his hunting licence suspended for a year.

"Every year this province grants licences to hunters or potential murderers to carry firearms," Mr. Smith said, "rather I should say misuse firearms during the hunting season."

He said high-powered weapons are placed "in the hands of idiots, who sometimes can't even load them properly."

"A dozen, on a yearly average, fatally shoot or cripple a fellow hunter, march nonchalantly up to a coroner's jury and explain that they thought it was a deer because they saw the brush move."

"The long and the short of it is a verdict of accidental death with the right to carry a firearm again next year remaining intact," he said.

MOUNTAIN BARRIER

The Pyrenees, mountain barrier between France and Spain, reach heights of more than 11,000 feet.

Orrick Scores Boxing Victory

It was a tough fight, but Wayne Orrick won it.

Orrick, fighting for Britannia Boxing Club on Wednesday's amateur boxing card, scored a technical knockout over clubmate Barry Bissenden.

It had been erroneously reported in Thursday's Colonist that Bissenden won the bout.

Penticton Southpaw Aiming for Stardom

BOSTON — Ted Bowsfield, the pride of Penticton, B.C., will receive an award as Boston Red Sox rookie of the year today, but the young left-hander isn't letting up on his rigorous program to become a star.

When the dinner is over, the 21-year-old Bowsfield will return to Penticton and a special backyard "pitching tunnel," his own invention for off-season training.

"I'm opposed to pitching in a gym," Bowsfield explained. "So I decided to invest a little money—about $250—in something that would make it possible for me to work outdoors despite the snow."

PITCHING ALLEY

Bowsfield's "alley," constructed of wood and heavy fabric material, is about 75 feet long, eight feet high and seven feet wide.

"It's three-sided, open at both ends and has a dirt floor and mound so I can pitch with my spikes on, the way I would during the regular season," he explained.

Bowsfield's training persistence will be rewarded tonight, when he receives his trophy at a $15 a plate banquet honoring him and teammates Ike Delock, Pete Runnels, Pete Daley and Jackie Jensen.

Heading the list of notables are Massachusetts governor Foster Furcolo, Richard Cardinal Cushing, baseball commissioner Ford Frick and incoming American League president Joe Cronin.

Bowsfield, the only B.C.-born athlete to break into the major leagues, had a 4-2 record last season after being called up from Minneapolis of the American Association in July. Included in that record were three victories over New York Yankees.

Bowsfield conferred with general-manager Bucky Harris yesterday and is expected to sign his 1959 contract today. The 190-pounder is looking forward to his sophomore year in the majors with confidence.

"Being called up in mid-season actually worked out in my favor, because I usually suffer from some sort of arm trouble during the spring. I might have pressed trying to make an impression and hurt myself.

"I now feel I won't have to rush my development in the spring because manager Mike Higgins has already seen me in action. He knows what I can do."
